ATTACHMENT A Supplemental Opinions

Summary

Based on the new information supplied to me, during the period April 1, 2003 through June 9, 2003, Fleming processed approximately 1,528 containers through the Berry Freight Control System.¹

Mr. Berry is owed $2,707,616 ($1,772 license fee per container x 1,528 containers) in license fees for the containers Fleming shipped through his system during this period.

I used Fleming's file named "Logistics Data Org" as the data source, specifically columns F (Container ID) and I (Sail By), to approximate the number of containers shipped. My approximation includes all containers which sailed between April 1, 2003 and June 9, 2003.

Total Invoices to 3rd Parties

During the period April 1, 2003 through June 9, 2003, Fleming invoiced third parties such as KMART, Foodland, and Conagra $2,761,697.² The charges appear to be related to shipping containers and goods from the mainland United States to Hawaii.

I used Fleming's Excel file named "Logistics Data Org," worksheets "Orders" and "Invoices" as the data sources. I assumed that the data found in column A (Job ID) from "Orders" and column A (Order ID) from "Invoices" described the same items. That is the Job ID and Order ID referred to the same shipment and related charge. This assumption was confirmed by agreeing the weight and cube of the individual items across both worksheets.

The "Orders" worksheet did not contain any invoice amounts; and the "Invoices" worksheet contained no sail date information. By confirming that the Order ID and the Job ID tracked the same shipment, I was able to cross reference the two lists to determine the amounts invoiced during the April through June 2003 time period.

Of the $2,761,697, $1,592,755 appears to be charges related to freight forwarding services for various Hawaii retailers.³ Included in those amounts are invoices to KMART totaling $767,934, and to Foodland totaling $575,543.⁴

The remainder of the invoice amounts appears to be part of the shipping allowances earned by Fleming for taking ownership of goods on the mainland US as opposed to having manufacturers ship to Hawaii.
